

Cannabis Tax Revenue in States That Regulate Cannabis for Adult Use

Legalizing cannabis for adults has been a wise investment. Since 2014 when sales began in Colorado and Washington, legalization policies have provided states a new revenue stream to bolster budgets and fund important services and programs. As of December 2021, states reported a combined total of $10.4 billion in tax revenue from legal, adult-use cannabis sales. In addition to revenue generated for statewide budgets, cities and towns have also generated hundreds of thousands of dollars in new revenue from local adult-use cannabis taxes.

Eighteen states have laws that legalize, tax, and regulate cannabis for adults 21 and older (the 2020 voter-approved adult-use legalization law in South Dakota was overturned by the state's Supreme Court in November 2021). Eight of the laws were approved in 2020 or 2021, and in seven of those states, sales and tax collections have not yet begun. This document reviews each state's adult-use cannabis tax structure, population, and revenue from legalization. These figures do not include medical cannabis tax revenue, application and licensing fees paid by cannabis businesses, additional income taxes generated by workers in the cannabis industry, or corporate taxes paid to the federal government.

Colorado (pop. 5.8 million) | Tax rate: 15% wholesale, 15% special retail

Colorado voters approved an initiative to regulate cannabis for adults in November 2012, and on January 1, 2014, the state became the first with legal adult-use sales. Colorado already had a developed medical cannabis regulatory system, and many businesses were able to transition to having both a medical and an adult-use counter. Colorado has a robust medical program, with about 1.6% of the population enrolled. Colorado's 15% wholesale excise tax and its 15% special retail tax do not apply to those sales. (The special retail tax rate was 10% until the legislature and governor increased it in July 2017. Also, until July 2017, a 2.9% standard statewide sales tax was levied on cannabis sales. Currently, the standard sales tax is only applied to cannabis accessories (e.g. pipes) and is not included in the totals below.)

As of November 2021, $471.9 million of the total revenue generated from cannabis taxes has been dedicated to improving Colorado's public school system.<sup>1</sup>

The below figures do not count local sales tax revenues, which have been significant. The city of Denver, for example, applies an additional 5.5% local sales tax on adult-use cannabis and has collected $237.5 million as of November 2021.<sup>2</sup>

Washington (pop. 7.6 million) | Tax rate: 37% at retail since July 2015; 6.5% sales tax

Washington’s voters also approved an adult-use measure in November 2012, and its first stores opened in July 2014. At the time, the state had an unregulated, arguably illegal, medical cannabis dispensary system, which was separate from the regulated adult-use program. This resulted in a slower ramp-up than in Colorado. Until July 2015, taxes were quite high — 25% at three points of transfer — making it hard to compete with illegal sales. In addition to changing the tax rate to 37% in 2015, the legislature created a medical endorsement program to which adult-use stores could apply to join.

In the 2019 and 2020 fiscal years, state officials reported that revenue from the 37% cannabis retail tax outpaced alcohol tax revenue, despite the fact that many more adults consume alcohol than cannabis.<sup>4</sup> For every $1 billion in revenue collected from the cannabis sales tax, nearly $600 million is funneled into public health initiatives, including a fund that provides health insurance for low-income families.<sup>5</sup>

The below figures do not include local taxes, which totaled an estimated $188.3 million from July 2014 through October 2021.<sup>6</sup>

Oregon (pop. 4.2 million) | Tax rate: 17% at retail

Oregon voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adult use in November 2014, and the state's first adult-use stores opened in October 2016. In addition, the legislature allowed medical cannabis dispensaries to sell a limited amount of cannabis (five grams) to adults from October 2015 until December 31, 2016. Those sales were taxed at 25% beginning January 4, 2016. The state's medical patients (about 0.5% of Oregon's population and dropping) can buy cannabis tax-free from adult-use stores.

Of the cannabis-related tax revenue it collects, the state distributes 40% to public schools, 15% to law enforcement, and 25% to mental health and treatment programs.<sup>8</sup>

The below figures do not include the 3% sales tax some localities impose. From February 2017 through August 2021, the local taxes collected totaled $86.1 million.<sup>9</sup>

Alaska (pop. 730,000) | Tax rate: $50/ounce at wholesale

Alaska voters approved an initiative to regulate cannabis for adult use in November 2014, and the first adult-use stores opened in October 2016.

A number of factors initially resulted in slower revenue generation than in some other states. The state's medical cannabis program did not have dispensaries, meaning there were no cannabis businesses that could transition to adult-use cultivators and retailers. As a result of a limited supply, many stores closed for large stretches of January 2017 or operated with reduced hours.<sup>11</sup>

Half of all adult-use cannabis tax revenue is invested in the Recidivism Reduction Fund and supports reentry programs for currently and formerly incarcerated individuals.<sup>12</sup>

Nevada (pop. 3.1 million) | Tax rate: 15% wholesale, 10% special retail

Nevada voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adult use in November 2016. The first adult-use stores were expected to be licensed in 2018, but the legislature and governor allowed medical cannabis dispensaries to sell to adults beginning on July 1, 2017.

A substantial piece of the 15% wholesale tax paid by cannabis cultivators goes to local governments, while the remainder is deposited into the state’s Distributive School Account to fund public education. The 10% cannabis retail tax has added hundreds of millions of dollars to the state’s rainy day fund.

California (pop. 39.5 million) | Tax rate: $9.25 per ounce for flowers or $2.75 on leaves/trim; 15% excise tax; 7.25% standard sales tax

California voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adults' use in November 2016. The state's first adult-use stores began to open in January 2018, but transition from the state's unregulated, grey market medical cannabis providers to a licensed and regulated system has been more gradual than some anticipated. In addition, localities have been slow to establish regulations, which has delayed the transition and reduced revenue.

In 2020, California collected more than $1 billion in adult-use cannabis tax revenue, a 62% increase compared to 2019.

The voter-approved legalization law directs a significant portion of its cannabis tax revenues to local nonprofit programs that benefit people adversely impacted by punitive drug laws. More than $100 million has already been distributed to community groups, with more on the way.<sup>15</sup> The state also invests large chunks of cannabis revenue into child care services and environmental programs.

The below figures do not include local sales and special taxes established by municipalities across the state, which raise an estimated $85 million in additional tax dollars each year in the state.<sup>16</sup>

Massachusetts (pop. 6.9 million) | Tax rate: 10.75% excise tax on sales; 6.25% standard sales tax

Massachusetts voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adults' use in November 2016. Many expected sales to begin in the summer of 2018, but the first adult-use stores did not open until November 2018.

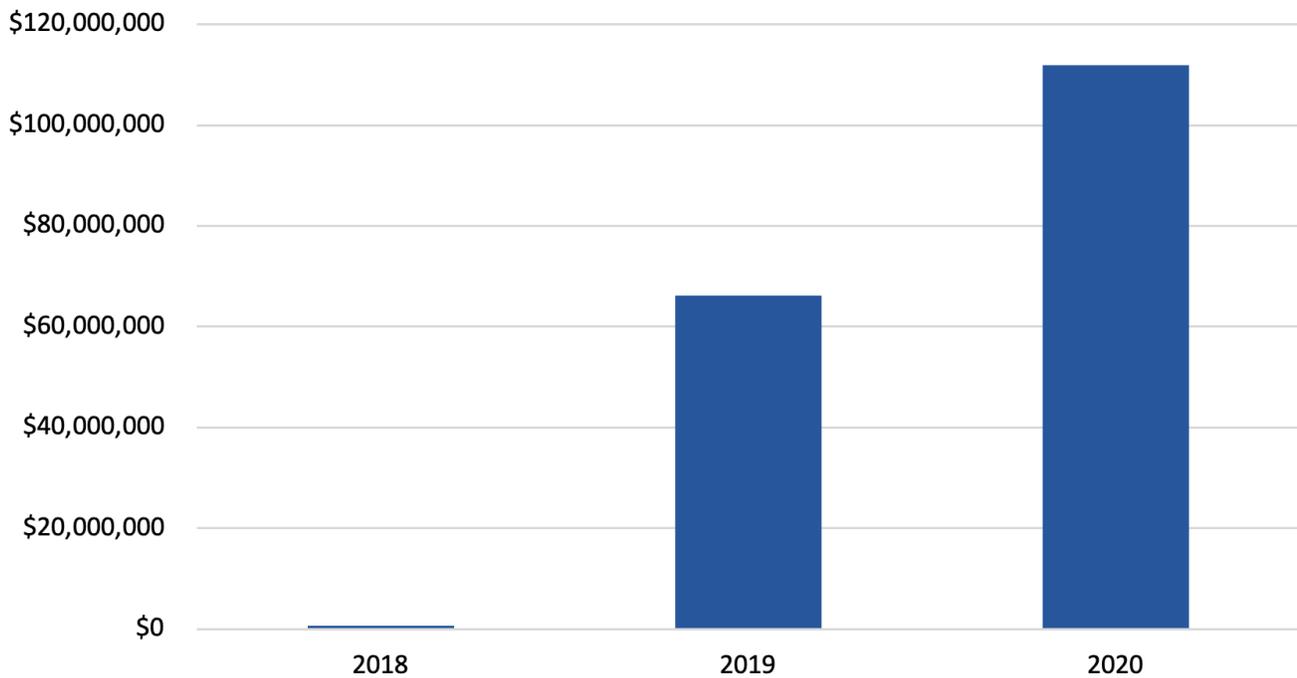

With adult-use cannabis tax revenue collected so far, the state has invested millions of dollars into public transportation and local governments.<sup>18</sup>

Massachusetts allows cities and towns to impose an additional sales tax up to 3%. Figures below do not include those totals. As of October 2021, local cannabis taxes provided an additional $62.5 million in revenue to cities and towns in Massachusetts.

Michigan voters approved an initiative to legalize and regulate cannabis for adults' use in November 2018. Sales began in December 2019, but localities have been slow to opt in and establish regulations, which delays the transition from the illicit market. Detroit opted in on November 24, 2020.

For adult-use cannabis taxes collected in Fiscal Year 2020, the Michigan Department of Treasury reported in March 2021 that, “[a]side from the nearly $10 million in disbursements to municipalities and counties, around $11.6 million will be sent to the School Aid Fund for K-12 education and another $11.6

Illinois’ law puts a strong emphasis on social equity and repairing harms caused by enforcement of laws that criminalized cannabis. In addition to investing 20% of adult-use cannabis tax revenue into mental health services, the state directs 25% of the funds to the Recover, Reinvest, and Renew Program, which supports local organizations in developing programs that benefit disadvantaged communities.

Maine voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adults’ use in November 2016, but sales did not begin until October 9, 2020.

The state’s legalization law divides cannabis tax revenue into two funds, one to support public health initiatives and the other for public safety and law enforcement training.

Vermont (pop. 620,000) | Tax rate: 14% excise tax on sales; 6% standard sales tax

On October 7, 2020, Gov. Phil Scott (R) allowed S. 54 to go into law without his signature. The law legalizes, regulates, and taxes cannabis sales for adults’ use. The legislature and governor had legalized personal possession and cultivation only in 2018. Regulated sales are scheduled to begin on May 1, 2022.

Vermont’s law requires that cannabis tax revenue be “used to fund a grant program to start or expand afterschool and summer learning programs, with a focus on increasing access in underserved areas.”

Arizona voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adults' use on November 3, 2020. Sales from existing medical cannabis businesses began on January 21, 2021.

After regulatory and enforcement costs are paid, Arizona's law distributes a third of the cannabis tax revenue to community colleges, along with 10% to public health and criminal justice programs.<sup>24</sup>

Montana (pop. 1.1 million) | Tax rate: 20% excise tax on sales

Montana voters approved an initiative regulating cannabis for adults' use on November 3, 2020. Sales began in January 2022.

The legalization implementation bill signed by the governor in May 2021 directs cannabis revenue to substance abuse recovery programs, conservation efforts, and services for veterans and their families.

New Jersey (pop. 8.9 million) | Tax rate: 6.625% standard sales tax, 1-2% local option taxes; fluctuating excise fee based on average sale price

On November 3, 2020, more than two-thirds of New Jersey voters approved a constitutional amendment directing the legislature and the Cannabis Regulatory Commission to regulate cannabis for adults' use. Sales have not yet begun.

In March 2021, lawmakers approved twin bills to implement the amendment. In addition to the standard sales taxes and local cannabis taxes, New Jersey's law imposes excise fees on sales from cultivators, which regulators can adjust each year. The cultivation excise fees would start at one-third of one percent of average retail sales prices. Beginning nine months after adult-use sales begin, and every year thereafter, the Cannabis Regulatory Commission could revise the fees, with fees increasing as the average retail price of cannabis drops. The Commission could levy excise fees at the following rates:

- up to $10 per ounce when average retail prices per ounce are $350 or higher;
- up to $30 per ounce when average retail prices per ounce are at least $250 but less than $350;

- up to $40 per ounce when average retail prices per ounce are at least $200 but less than $250; and
- up to $60 per ounce when average retail prices drop below $200 per ounce.

Taxes from New Jersey’s legal cannabis market will largely support goals to promote social equity. The law requires 70% of cannabis revenues to provide economic assistance and services to “impact zones,” which are areas of the state disproportionately affected by prior enforcement of cannabis criminalization laws.

New York (pop. 19.5 million) | Tax rate: 9% cannabis sales tax; 4% local sales tax; for distributors, a potency tax on THC of $0.005/mg for flower, $0.008/mg for concentrates, and $0.03/mg for edibles

On March 31, 2021, Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed legislation (S.854-A/A.1248-A) legalizing cannabis for adults in New York. Sales have not yet begun.

After regulatory and administrative costs, 40% of cannabis revenue will go to community reinvestment grants, 20% will go to public schools, and 40% will support drug treatment and public health programs.

New Mexico (pop. 2.1 million) | Tax rate: 12% retail excise until July 1, 2025, which then increases by one percentage point per year, maxing out at 18% on July 1, 2030; 5.125% to 8.6875% gross receipts tax (which varies depending on the location in the state)

New Mexico’s Cannabis Regulation Act legalizes and regulates cannabis for adults 21 and older. It passed the legislature on March 31, 2021 during a special session called for that purpose by Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham. Gov. Grisham signed the bill on April 12, 2021. Sales have not yet begun.

Much of the cannabis excise tax revenue will go to the municipal governments where sales take place. Future budget bills will include additional revenue distribution. They are expected to include funding for community reinvestment.

Virginia (pop. 8.5 million) | Tax rate: 21% retail sales tax; 6% standard sales tax; optional local sales tax up to 3%

On April 7, 2021, the Virginia General Assembly voted to approve amendments proposed by Gov. Ralph Northam that made the adult-use legalization law take effect on July 1, 2021.

After covering regulatory costs, cannabis tax revenue will be allocated to pre-K education for at-risk children (40%); a Cannabis Equity Reinvestment Fund (30%); substance abuse treatment and prevention (25%); and public health programs (5%). Sales are scheduled to begin in January 2024, but the legislature could speed up — or stall — implementation.

Connecticut (pop. 3.6 million) | Tax rate: THC-based excise tax: $0.00625 per milligram of THC in flower cannabis; $0.0275/mg of THC in edibles; $0.009 /mg of THC in other cannabis products; 6.35% standard sales tax; 3% tax to the municipality where the sales occurred

On June 22, 2021, Gov. Ned Lamont signed S.B. 1201 — “An Act Concerning the Equitable and Responsible Regulation of Cannabis” — into law, after it passed the Connecticut House and Senate.

Starting on July 1, 2023 and thereafter, 25% of the excise tax will go to the Prevention and Recovery Services Fund. From July 1, 2023 until June 30, 2026, 60% of the excise tax would go to the Social Equity and Innovation Fund. On July 1, 2026, that would increase to 65%. Beginning on July 1, 2028, it would increase again and would remain at 75%.

The 3% tax that goes to municipalities must be used for one of five specific purposes, such as re-entry services, mental health or addiction services, youth services bureaus, and streetscape improvements near cannabis retailers.

Sales are expected to begin in 2022.
