

Former Filament Health Corp. Employee Files Lawsuit Against Rhelion Life Sciences Corp.

Burnaby, British Columbia, July 23, 2026 - Rhelion Life Sciences Corp. (CSE: TRIP) (FSE: 4YX) (OTCQB: TRUFF) ("Rhelion") has been named as a defendant following the Termination Without Cause of the Filament Health Corp. ("Filament") Director of Intellectual Property. The Termination Without Cause took place six (6) weeks after the acquisition of Filament Health Corp.

The Director of Intellectual Property had occupied the role at Filament for more than six (6) years. Claims include, but are not limited to: Breach of Contract; Tortious Inducement of Breach of Contract; Wrongful Dismissal; and, Unlawful Interference with Economic Relations.

On July 7th, 2026, Rhelion was sent a document request (the "Request"). The document request concerned ascertaining the particulars, if any, of contractual obligations related to the acquisition of Filament; namely, the forbearance of Termination Without Cause of Filament employees following acquisition (the "Forbearance Agreement") in general; and more specifically, Termination Without Cause whereby the role of the terminated Filament employee is consequently and immediately filled by a Rhelion employee.

"It is important that those in the tech start-up ecosystem can trust that contractual obligations will be honoured following an acquisition or other liquidity event," said Taran Grey. "Although filing suit was costly, the expense provides a new sense of security to existing Filament employees that the Rhelion Board of Directors will ensure contracts, be they employment or commercial, can be relied upon."

As of July 23rd, 2026, no response has been received from Rhelion to address the Request. As a result, a civil action was filed with the mandated, timely discovery of documents outlined in the Request to be produced in due course. A negotiated settlement will be pursued should Rhelion provide evidence of acting in good faith, if not with their best efforts.

– END –

For additional information:
Taran Grey, Principal, IPLobby.com
E: taran.grey@gmail.com
T: +1 (604) 562-5596